

Half a Song

Cody Johnson

The band was startin' slow and about the time you walked in
I could see it in your eyes
You were heart broke and needin' a friend
The singer started singin' as I let you have my barstool
And before that first chorus was through You were already smilin'
I said no use in tryin'
Open up a tab, oh girl I'm gladly buyin'
Ain't it funny thinkin' you were thinkin' you be drinkin' alone
Baby ain't it crazy what can happen in half a song The second verse started
I asked you if you'd like to dance
When you said no I figured well there goes my chance
But the singer kept on singin' and before he hit that chorus again
I felt you grab my hand
Then we bee-lined to the floor like we'd done this before
Holdin' onto you one, two, three four
Spinnin' and a gettin' in a rhythm, girl it didn't take long
Baby ain't it crazy what can happen in half a song That song ended, said we've only got one more
Now we're half way through and we're still out here on the floor
Wonder what you're thinkin' cause I think I'd like to drive you home
But I know that's probably never gonna happen
I'll just settle for your number on a napkin
Then again you never know what could happen in half a song
Half a song

Songwriters

CODY DANIEL JOHNSON Published by

Lyrics © Songtrust Ave, Kobalt Music Publishing Ltd., ST MUSIC LLC Song Discussions is protected by U.S.
Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>