

Shelter

Laurence Fox

You took a life just to be with her
It's too bad that the life was your own
You saw no good in the beautiful dark and so
 You had to call her backHome, go home
I'm getting tired of hearing where you came from
 Know that you've tried so hard
To let her be free, but you're so aloneYou leave her no shelter
 Now you know
 No one to save her from her storms
But it's so hard building a house in the darkYou have a child between you now
 And thank god that she's too young to know
 Why you don't touch in the dark of the night
 And why there's something calling you, something calling youHome, go home
I'm getting tired of hearing where you came from
 Know that you've tried so hard
To let her be free, but you're so aloneYou leave her no shelter
 Now you know
 No one to save her from her storms
But it's so hard building a house in the darkTake all the things that I promised
 And build her a home for when I'm gone
 Cause I can shelter you no more
There is no peace from all your storms that rage
 Coz it's so hard building a house in the dark
You know that it's so hard building a house in the darkSo don't go go
 No no no, no no

Lyrics provided by <https://damlyrics.com/>