They Are The Roses

Linda Eder

Born with heaven in their eyes
God sent, innocent, the promise of life
Born into this mess we've made
Holding the future and hope of better days
Cause these is nothing more beautiful and wild
Than the dreams that grow in the heart of every childThey are the roses, they are the lights that shine
They are the waves that roll in on the ocean tide
They are angels, they are souls in flight
They are the hope that everythings gonna be alright, they are the rosesImagine a place filled with happy sounds of playgrounds
Where every child is safe
Where people join hands and pray that the children
Will all have a chance
In every family, every tribe and every town
Were the keepers of this garden, and we cant let them down'Cause they are the roses, they are the lights that shine
They are the waves that roll in on the ocean tide
They are angels, they are souls in flight
They are the hope that everythings gonna be alright, they are the rosesImagine a place
Where all people join hands, and every child is safe'Cause they are the roses, they are the lights that shine
They are the waves that roll in on the ocean tide
They are angels, they are souls in flight
They are the hope that everything's gonna be alrightThey are the roses, they are the lights that shine
They are the waves that roll in on the ocean tide
They are angels, they are souls in flight
They are the hope that everythings gonna be alright
