

Postcard Memories

Drew Holcomb & The Neighbors

Heard you pass south of Baltimore
Wondering if you watch the ships roll in
Will you stay up till the dawns early light
Do you ever wonder how i've been
Postcard memories only paint a picture
Of how you are in one place at a time
I need you now more than ever before
I'm waitin' for you to come back home
It don't matter where you go when you're young
When you're tryin' to outrun the past
Like a ghost you travel through my dreams
I only see you through the looking glass
Postcard memories only paint a picture
Of how you are in one place at a time
I need you now more than ever before
I'm waiting for you to come back home
I swear I forget most of what i learn
As the earth moves from morning to night
One thing I know i'll always remember your eyes shining in the morning light
I thought I saw you out there dancin on the ocean
I thought I heard you singin' too rah loo rah la
I wanna be wherever you are
I'm waitin' for you to come back home
I need you now more than ever before
I'm waitin' for you to come back home
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>