

Summer Skin

Yen Pox

Squeaky swings and tall grass
The longest shadows ever cast
The water's warm and children swim
And we frolicked about in our summer skin I don't recall a single care
Just greenery and humid air
Then Labor Day came and went
And we shed what was left of our summer skin On the night you left I came over
And we peel the freckles from our shoulders
Our brand new coats so flushed in pink
And I knew your heart I couldn't win 'Cause the seasons change was a conduit
And we left our love in our summer skin
