Elysium

Bear's Den

Brother do you believe in an afterlife?
Our souls will both collide
Some great Elysium
Way up in the skyFree from our shackles, our chains, our mouths, our brains
We'll open all the gates
We will walk careless, straight into the lightI've never felt so enlightened
Every page I turn
I only find myself
Feeling more alonePosing questions to a silent universe
My very thoughts are cursed
They just seem to multiply
Forever in my mind
Brother don't grow up
Brother please never grow upJust hold out against the night
And guard your hope with your life
For the darkness, she will come
Oh and you have nowhere left to runOh but your eyes are wider than mine, but they'll never see?
Just hope that age does not erase all that you've seen
Don't let bitterness become you
Your only hopes are within youJust hold out against the night
And guard your hope with your life
