Love is the Law

Paul Kelly

Though I speak in tongues of angels
And in many tongues of men
Though prophecy may sing through me
Without love I'm nothingThough I understand all mysteries
And can see the story's end
Though my faith can move mountains
Without love I'm nothingLove is the law, the law is love
Love is the law, the law is love
You may give away your riches
Do good deeds in the sight of men
You may be strong against temptation
But without love you're nothingWithout love you're jus useless
Without love you're living in hell
Without love you're so hollow
An empty horn, a clanging bellLove is the law, the law is love
Love is the law, the law is loveLove can suffer hardship
Love is touch and kind
Love is never envious
Or puffed up with pride
Love is always truthful
Love is never stale
Love is always hopeful
And never dreams that it can failLove is the law, the law is love
Love is the law, the law is love
