So Familiar

The Euphoria

Were doing fine tonight
We've got a camel pack of light
Because the sun can't reach us
Theres too much dust in our eyes

And to escape some kind of fight
We put some speed into our flight
But with the turbines smashed
The airplanes gonna crash
Into the glass behind our sights

Because its been so very long
Since they've been playing that same damn song

Its so familiar
How far someone could go to get back to the start of it but now that you and I know we were already at the heart of it
Id rather live another day than crawl back and pretend that im a part of it

Well its so familiar
How far someone could go to get back to the start of it
Id rather live another day, then crawl back and pretend that im a part of it

Went mad from candle light
And with our torches burning bright
We had some trouble finding our way back alright

Cause I was stranded in between The likes of you and me
And through a television screen the static bites

Because its been so very long
Since they've been playing that same damn song

Well its so familiar
How far someone could go to get back to the start of it
Id rather live another day than crawl back and pretend that im a part of it

Well its so familiar
How far someone could go to get back to the start of it
Id rather live another day, then crawl back and pretend that im a part of it

Well its so familiar

(instrumental section)

Well its so familiar
How far someone could go to get back to the start of it
Id rather live another day than crawl back and pretend that im a part of it

Well its so familiar
How far someone could go to get back to the start of it
Id rather live another day, then crawl back and pretend that im a part of it

Well its so familiar
