TWENTY

Quarterbacks

Twenty cities have passed me by
Keep finding treasures I don't want to find
But I've stolen and I've crossed the line
And I want you, I want you
Twenty seconds and you could be gone
You shine brighter than the morning sun
You think it's over but it's just begun
And I want you, I want you
This sky of gray is full of gold
Can feel your heart and feel your soul
I'll drink it up and take it slow
I don't need anything else
Tell me where I'm heading
Tell me I could be there soon
Somewhere I've forgotten
I'll die a little more for you
When everything is broken
There's a piece I'll never use
I keep finding reasons
To die a little more for you
Twenty questions ringing in my head
The moment's over but it's never dead
What did I say and what does all this mean
'Cause I want you, I want you
The fire light as it hits your eye
The heads, they turn as you walk on by
Baby, we belong in another time
I still want you, I want you
This sky of gray is full of gold

Can feel your heart and feel your soul
I'll drink it up and take it slow
I don't need anything else
Tell me where I'm heading
Tell me I can be there soon
Somewhere I've forgotten
I'll die a little more for you
When everything is broken
There's a piece I'll never use

I keep finding reasons
To die a little more for you
Die a little more for you
How many things can you wish for
'Cause wishing is all I do
When it comes to you
How many lies can you live through
How many times can you keep moving
Keep moving on?
Tell me where I'm heading
Tell me I could be there soon
Somewhere I've forgotten
I'll die a little more for you
When everything is broken
There's a piece I never use
I keep finding reasons
To die a little more for you
To die a little more for you
Die a little more for you
