

Light up Your Window

Jackie Greene

Something about you robs my good sense blind
Don't know what it is, but I don't mind
Every night I see you in my dreams
I haven't kissed your lips in years, it seems
But when the rhythm of the freight train runnin'
Meets the song of the jet plane hummin'
Light up your window baby, I'll be comin' home
So we can be alone
I'm like a stranger everywhere I go
There ain't nobody here I really know
I count the miles and I'm feelin' incomplete
I guess the distance makes the closeness oh so sweet (so sweet)
But when the rhythm of the freight train runnin'
Meets the song of the jet plane hummin'
Light up your window baby, I'll be comin' home
How long does the road go on?
How deep the dark before the spark of dawn
It suffers me to think about
All the nights we do without
But when the rhythm of the freight train runnin'
Meets the song of the jet plane hummin'
Light up your window baby, I'll be comin' home
And when the rhythm of the freight train runnin'
Meets the song of the jet plane hummin'
Light up your window baby, I'll be comin' home
So we can be alone
