Brother

Warrel Dane

Brother, you were never there for me
When the children needed peace you disgraced both families
Brother, you were never there for me
When my father died I thought that you would take my hand
You said I was just too youngSister, I can tell you all the love I have for you
Our mother sleeps in silent peace because your love was pure
But brother, you were never there for me
When my father died I thought that you would take my hand
You said I was just too youngIf I could erase one moment of pain
I'd throw away everything, even fame
If I could play God do you know what I'd do?
I'd swim through your blood and kill the cancer in youBrother, you were never there for me
I was just too young, now I've grown and I can see
That brother, you were never there for me
When my father died I thought that you would take my hand
You said I was just too young
