Say Goodbye to the Morning

Shadow Gallery

All alone and standing in the rain
Early mornings whispering my name
Seems so distant and cannot reach me now
Flying high above you, I bring to you this wordFor your love, for your life, for your song
Look around and see them fall to pray
Troubled waters carry you away
And your memories say goodbyeWe're not alone, not alone
Looking down, seeing all of us
Screaming out in anger
When they come, when they comeAll along this empty lonely road
Oh, they have seen you cried a thousand times
What's to be you wept to us, what's a part of us?
Stalking out the winter's bitter coldAll alone, do you want me
For the fire to be near you
In the night as you wonder, you must never
We are lost, walk alone without lightYou believe that time passes us by Fate alone will blow it all sky high
I've been torn into a world you don't believe
And I've seen souls that I once knew, chained in burning steelAnd I do not think they'll ever sing again
Realize you're running out of time
My hand of fate is reaching out tonight
But I'll be going soon, going on my wayI know you want to come along with me
Hand in hand, we'll walk and never turn
The road is open all the way
Say goodbye to the morningSay goodbye to the morning, say goodbye to the morning
Say goodbye to the morning or rely on this warning
It's not over when you die, so look out
