I Hear Your Song, Sweetness

George Taylor

In the corner of a smokey bar
She's singing Hallelujah
All the fools are shouting over her
But she keeps singing Hallelujah

Like blindness yeah and I'm seeing into you
All the roads that troubled souls have faded out of you
Like brightness is flowing out of you
All the cries were fading back to listen to your juice

So I said, "Keep Holding On.
I hear your song, Sweetness.
Don't let them get you wrong.
I hear your song,
Sweetness."

No it don't make sense to me
When they're looking through ya
River sunset beauty queen
Feels like I always knew her

Your weakness is speaking straight to me
I feel your pain, I feel the same
I'm seeing what you see
And sleepless, she's crying out to me
Blurry eyed, she burns inside
And pours the flame on me.

So I said, "Keep Holding On.
I hear your song, Sweetness.
Don't let them get you wrong.
I hear your song,
Sweetness."

So I said, "Keep Holding On.
I hear your song, Sweetness.
Don't let them get you wrong.
I hear your song,
Sweetness."

Lyrics Submitted by Rachael B

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/