

Crumbs

Jonatha Brooke

I can tell, by the way you're pushing crumbs around the table
You're not listening to me
And you say, that you have come as far as you are able
But you're not far from the tree And you say, you're okay, but you live your life like it's over
And you say, you're okay, but you live your life like it's over In your dreams, all your passion is like liquid fire
You trail your fingers find the spark
And you see your face reflected in the silver spirals
But then it burns down in the dark And you say, you're okay, but you live your life like it's over
And you say, you're okay, but you live your life like it's over And all the things you ever tried to tell me
Somehow don't apply to you
You're the one evading hope, side stepping every inkling
That the good guy, the early bird, the one who tries
The one who tries again wins And you say, you're okay, but you live your life like it's over
And you say, you're okay, but you live your life like it's over And you say, you're okay, but you live your life
like it's over
And you say, you're okay, but you live your life like it's over And you say, you're okay, but you live your life
like it's over
And you say, you're okay, but you live your life like it's over
