This Time

Matthew

The morning comes and mornings fade away
Into the eve of what's to be and breathing in the life
That's breathed from out the maker of the day we seeThe marred intentions all around us fall
To pools of wings that never fly
So as we promise to redeem the lazing losses of the dayWe only pray that this time
We'll see it turn around
We'll see it turn around
This time, dreams we'll realizeWho was I to walk away from you
And who were you to wonder why?
For I could place a million faces on the shoulders of my pain and I doBut time continues on the broken road
And treasures wait for those who find
Among the thistles grow the promises unending souls desireAnd thoughts that maybe this time
We'll see it turn around
We'll see it turn around
This time, dreams we'll realizeDark memories surrounding will offer only fruits of darkness
Into this daze we're thrown but not to drown, drownAnd this time
We'll see it turn around
We'll see it turn around
This time, dreams we'll realize
