Photographs Lie

Shelter

Advisory - the following lyrics contain explicit language:

As I admire the smiles on the people in the photo
I think "What am I missing this time?"
I'm always racing, chasing, someone, somewhere, that isn`t mine
Thinking that the grass is greener on the other side Thinking that in your shoes I'll be satisfied.
first admiration, then contemplation tricking my mind... cause I know that photographs lie Well photographs lie they fool my eyes they show me something that is not It's like fire that makes me desire what they have while they may want what I've got And this romanticism is like a prison
'cause live won't turn out to how it is foreseen So will any body care or just be there to pick up our shattered dreams Admiring you while you may be admiring me Photographs painting a false picutre of reality
And I think I'd rather leave it, just leave it as a blur.
Instead of lamenting over the past of things that never were.
Photographs Lie by Shelter. Lyrics by Ray Cappo. from the Lp "Perfection of Desire" on Revelation Records.

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/