Beyond my control

Anja Garbarek

It happens that someone knocks at my door
Then the whole house starts to shake
So that it gets really hard to stand up
And even worse to walkI usually fall down on the floor and I stay there
Until that someone decides to leave and the house calms down
And I look through the curtains
To see if he would regret to see if he would try againIt happens that someone calls me on the phone
And my house gets so scared
That it jumps right up into my throat
I swallow like crazyHoping my heart will glide back down
So I can talk to that someone
Maybe talk to a friend
But it is too late, but it is too lateIt is beyond my control
If I don't open up the door
It is beyond my control
If I don't answer your callsI'm not to blame, it isn't my fault
It was you that make my house shake
It was you that made my heart jump
It was you that make my house shake
It was you that made my heart jumpAnd it happens that I take a walk outside
Just to get some nice fresh air
And it happens that I see someone i knew
A long, long time agoThen I just seem to disappear
Becoming one with a wall
Becoming one with a lamppost
Becoming one with a treeBecoming one with a street
Becoming one with a house
Becoming one with a door
Becoming one with you allIt is beyond my control
If I don't open up the door
It is beyond my control
If I don't answer you callIt is beyond my control
If I just seem to disappear
It is beyond my control
If I am suddenly not hereI'm not to blame, it isn't my fault
It was you that make my house shake
It was you that made my heart jump
It was you that make my house shake
It was you that made my heart jumpIt was you who came my way
