

Hemp

Living Colour

How carefully I've shaped you in the solitude of days
How peaceful is my mind entwined in cord around my fingers
How sweet the days I've marked in knots I've tenderly caressed
 So many times I've touched you, reached you, teased you
 Now fingering these veins of hemp, their hair upon my skin
 And how gently, quickly you will sleep
 Slip into my collection with it's bristles, coils, intentions
 Yet your words will be unfaithful before I set you free
 Slip as life is bound to slip from this entropy disorder
 Then tied and laid upon the floor in perfect symmetry
 'Til the frayed edge of your lips on mine
 Positioned, placed at ease once more
 'Til this restlessness returns, I turn and turn and turn again
