

Nashville

Onward, Soldiers

This road is all I could ever remember,
The trees and the lights, the side of my window,
I wonder if I could call it, my home.

I'm passing a spot?, time is a gamble,
Some when it shines, drifters and ramblers,
I wonder if I can make it your way, tonight.

So dance like you're under, the eyes of a stranger,
And live like you're in for no kinds of danger,
You loved when you rock, but you're lovely, when you roll.

So live for the moment, don't wait for the sun to rise,
And tell all your lovers, you're grateful for all of their lives, lives, lives,
Cause the city is calling, so answer the door with a smile.
Cause you will love, once you've already said your goodbyes.

Burn all your bridges, repair the old ones,
Make your desicions, except when the days done,
You're out in the open just waiting, to get caught.

Wait at the station, for the next train to Nashville,
What was I thinking, you took all the right pills,
You loved when you leave, but you're lovely when you return.

And tell all your friends, the ones you've surrounded,
It's your life to live, and theirs to be proud of,
The ones you forgive, are the ones you will never forget.

So live for the moment, don't wait for the sun to rise,
And tell all your lovers you're greatful for all of their lives, lives, lives.
Cause the city is calling, so answer the door with a smile.
Cause you will love, cause you will love
Once you've already said your goodbyes
