Dream About Changing

Sally Seltmann

The magician is late. I decide to fake my own tricks.
I'm lying in the back of a smashed up car with a drum and a guitar beside me.The car radio is on. What is this song?
I try to sing along but cannot keep up with the words.
I close my eyes and dream about changing.I'm sailing the ship on a lake that never runs dry.
Something is starting because I'm a little, I'm a little bit shy.Girl comes running with a book in her hand.
I open to the first page. It says, "Yes you can Get over your shy inhibitions if you try to."
She says follow me down to the lake
And take all your troubles and your worries and you shake, shake, shake
Them out into the deep blue water.I'm sailing the ship on a lake that never runs dry.
Something is starting because I'm a little, I'm a little bit shy.
I'm a little bit shy.
I'm a little bit shy.
I'm a little bit shy.Surprise, surprise! You're standing in a movie still,
The sun in your eyes. I woke up to you and said can we talk about it?
Yes, you say you'd like to.
You whisper something in my ear.
It's a code or a message and it all becomes so clear.
I close my eyes and dream about changing.I'm sailing the ship on a lake that never runs dry.
Something is starting because I'm a little, I'm a little bit shy.
I'm sailing the ship on a lake that never runs dry.
Something is starting because I'm a little, I'm a little bit shy.
I'm a little bit shy.
I'm a little bit shy.
I'm a little bit shy.

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/