More Than a Memory

Ezra Henderson

You're more than a memory
You left with a piece of me
You're more than a memory
You've taken a piece of me, woah

Now you've got me waking up, wishing it was all a dream
I'm looking for a cure to make me just forget everything
The pictures in my phone don't lie
I deleted the best part of my life
I used to take you to the movies, photos in the booth
Used to tell me bout your ex and how he made you feel used
Now I wake up in the morning, sound of my alarm
It takes a bit to realize you're no longer in my arms (in my arms)
I was following my dreams, now I sleep alone
I was confused tryna find out what I needed most Cause I know I can't go on tour, leaving you at home
I guess I took too long deciding, so you had to go
Put your head on my chest and hear me breathing
You still have my heart but now it's bleeding
I'm sorry that I wasn't what you needed
I tried to fix a broken girl, got cut on shattered pieces

You're more than a memory
You left with a piece of me, (oh you left) woah
You're more than a memory
You've taken a piece of me, woah

You know I hate to talk on the phone, but I still did it
Cause I know you don't like being alone, and now I get it
Good times become good byes cause your posting pictures with other guys cause you know that I'm missing you unless you feel like I'm losing my mind at this jealousy, wait
This ain't how it's supposed to go, I though I was your home
I didn't put you first, but I can't do this on my own
You need someone who's there for you, I guess I should've known (should've known)

You're more than a memory
You left with a piece of me, woah
You're more than a memory, oh no
You've taken a piece of me

How could I be so in love? (so in love, so in love)
I'm sorry that I wasn't enough (wasn't enough)
You were my first love (you)
You were my first love

You're more than a memory, ooh
