

Coming Home

Iron Maiden

When I stand before you shining
    In the early morning Sun
    When I feel the engines roar
And I think of what we've done
    Oh the bittersweet reflection
    As we kiss the earth goodbye
    As the waves and echoes of the Towns become the ghosts of time
    Over borders that divide the
        Earthbound tribes
    No creed and no religion
    Just a hundred winged souls
We will ride this thunderbird
    Silver shadows on the earth
    A thousand leagues away
        Our land of birth
        To Albion's land
        Coming home

When I see the runway lights
    In the misty dawn
    The night is fading fast
    Coming home far away
    As the vapor trails alight
    Where I've been tonight
    You know I will not stay
Curving on the edge of daylight
    Till it slips into the void
Waited in the long night dreaming
    Till the Sun is born again
    Stretch the fingers of my hand
    Cover countries with my span
        Just a lonely satellite
A speck of dust in cosmic sand
    Over borders that divide the
        Earthbound tribes

    Flown the dark Atlantic
Over mariners' stormy graves
We will ride this thunderbird

Silver shadows on the earth
A thousand leagues away
Our land of birth
To Albion's land
Coming home
When I see the runway lights
In the misty dawn
Coming home far away

To Albion's land
Coming home
In the misty dawn
Coming home far away
Coming home far away

When I see the runway lights
In the misty dawn
Coming home far away

*end*
