

Mountain Time

Molly Nilsson

I'm always dreaming I could run away, as long as I remember, it's been that way There's nothing for me happening here or maybe there is, maybe I'm running out of fear Or maybe life's only just begun, when you're on the run

I go out each night, expecting more of the world
something new and exciting,
something I've never heard
But they want you to grow up, so that you can have their babies Is there nothing else out there, waiting for us maybe?

Some girls would just rather have fun and be on the run

On the run Something tells me I'll be better off if I stay in my mind

It's like everyone round here have their watches set to Mountain time Their perfect lives in paradise was never meant for me Fuck it, I think I'd rather be on the run

I'll go out each night, expecting more of the world
something new and exciting,
something I've never heard

Let them grow their beards and talk careers, but all their words have lost their meaning I'd never wanna do what they expect me to but something entirely new

Something entirely new
