Unmitigated Gall

Pam Tillis

Well, how could you have the unmitigated gall
To come back now, expecting me to fall
Right down on my knees and kiss your feet, yeah, feet
Feet that one day went a walking out on me with a fast talking
Slob, you hardly knew your name, your mind is de-arrangedAnd where did you get the backbone and the grit
To come back now expecting me to fit
Right back into plans that we once made, I must say
Plans that now are gone forever to return never, never
I don't want you anymore, so get away from my doorAnd let me live, live, live and let me live, live, live
Don't come messing up my life again
And how could you have the courage and the nerve
To come back now expecting me to love you
After the way that you've done meNow, bet you think that I'm a fool
But you're the one that blew their cool
I don't need you anymore, so get away from my doorAnd let me liveWell, I guess you think that I'm a fool
But you're the one that blew their cool
I don't need you anymore, so get away from my doorAnd let me live, live, live and let me live, live, live
Let me live, live, live and let me live, live, liveWell, how could you have the unmitigated gall
Get away, get away now
Well, how could you have the unmitigated gall
