The Bed

Dave Navarro

On his side of the bed He's sleeping like a baby dreams are dancing in his head Lying with his lady, its a peaceful night And everythings just fine, on his side of the bedBut on her side of the bed Those big brown eyes are crying from the things he never says And deep inside she's dying as she turns to face the wall There's no love at all, on her side of the bedIf he'd just reach out she'd forget about All the times that he let her down Oh, but in his mind everythings all right When the lights go outNow on his side of the bed He never even noticed her neglege of red, the very same one that She wore the night that they were wed But he never turned his head, to her side of the bedIf he'd just reach out she'd forget about All the times that he let her down Oh, but in his mind everythings all right When the lights go outNow on his side of the bed He wakes up and turns to say "I love you" But instead all he finds are pages full of words, she never said And thats all she left on her side of the bed
