Where the Colors Don't Go

Sam Phillips

In a white room, in a white head
In a cobweb of enterprise
Where the dreams sleep and fears keepThat's where the colors don't go
That's where the colors don't show
That's where the colors don't goOne take, no give Half live, half ignore
An endless chase in a small placeOne world, one white flag
One shopping bag and restaurant
No surprise there, only lies thereThat's where the colors don't go
That's where the colors don't show
That's where the colors don't goI want your eyes to color my world
And hear my endless longingThat's where the colors don't go
That's where the colors don't show
That's where the colors don't goThat's where the colors don't go
That's where the colors don't show
That's where the colors don't goThat's where the colors don't go
That's where the colors don't show
That's where the colors don't go
