God Forbid (Quiet Room Version)

Ghost Machine

There was a time when i could believe the future was bright and unjaded
Now things have changed and im not the same everything clear slowly fadingGod forbid, you should have to see things my way
God forbid, you should feel the same
God forbid, you should never walk in my shows
God forbid, you should never know my name
You will never know, you could never know the painLines on my face scars on my soul
Running in place getting older
Everyones fake and nothing is real
If this is a game I surrenderGod forbid you should have to see things my way
God forbid you should feel the same
God forbid you should never walk in my shows
God forbid you should never know hate
You will never know, you could never knowLost here with you, lost here without youGod forbid, you should have to see things my way
God forbid you should feel the same
God forbid you should never walk in my shoes
God forbid you should never know
You should never know the pain
The pain
