

Should I Let You In

Meredith Brooks

Should I let you in, into my house with its concrete walls?
Should I let you in, into my room with its curtains drawn?
I want to open up and let you walk right through my door
Can you tell me, is it worth it, the risk any more?

Should I let you in?

Should I let you in?

Should I let you in?

Should I let you in?

Should I let you in, into my far from perfect place?
Should I let you see where I keep my secrets safe?
I want to open up, but I've been hurt this way before
Can you tell me, is it worth the risk any more?

Should I let you in?

Should I let you in?

Should I let you in?

Should I let you in?

Through my window, I see you now
You're looking in, I'm looking out
My heart will make up its mind somehow
Should I let you in, into my house?
Should I let you in, inside these walls?
Should I let you in, into my heart?
Should I let you in, inside my world?
Should I let you in?
Should I let you in?
Should I let you in?
