

Better

Gardiner Sisters

Painted pictures and glass jars
Wooden puzzles and ragged dolls
A mother's daughter is growing tall
She's there to lift her when she falls

And she said
You are more than I've ever wanted
More than I've ever needed
More than I've ever dreamed of
And I will love you 'til there's nothing left of me

The girl got older, she met a boy
He was there when she laughed and cried
Their hearts collided, fell in love
She was speechless, when he got down on one knee

And he said
You are more than I've ever wanted
More than I've ever needed
More than I've ever dreamed of
And I will love you 'til there's nothing left of me

Flowing dresses and wedding bells
Holidays in our little house
Its getting heavy, the babe inside
She starts to cry when she holds her for the first time

And she said
You are more than I've ever wanted
More than I've ever needed
More than I've ever dreamed of
You are more than I've ever wanted
More than I've ever needed
More than I've ever dreamed of
And I will love you 'til there's nothing left of me
