

Cajun Moon

Tim Chaisson

My pretty Madelaine, Iâ€™ll keep fighting till the end of this madness
Like I told you, when they stole you away from me

I left my eastern shore with the North Star over my shoulder
They think they won the war but this battle is far from over

I lost you under an Acadian sunrise
I watched the ship carry you over the horizon
I sold my soul to get here, looking for you
Forever searching under the Cajun moon

My precious Madelaine Iâ€™ve been sailing on this ocean
Iâ€™m weak and getting tired but your fire still guides me
?And when I reach the shore of Louisiana weâ€™ll be together
An oath to you I swore to be your man through whatever

My sleepy Madelaine, Iâ€™ll only see you when youâ€™re dreamingâ€™
