The More I Run

Windowpane

Maybe I should go
Maybe I should move
Maybe I should hang on just to one more time before I go on loving you
Maybe I should cry
Maybe I should see
Maybe I should hang on just to one more time like you're hanging on to me

Maybe I should go
Maybe I should lie
Maybe I should sip on down one more drink so I can look you in the eye
Maybe I'm obsessed
Maybe I can't rest
Maybe I can't feel your skin beneath my hand 'til I get this off my chest

Cause time ain't on my side
Time ain't on my side
The more I feel inside
The more I run from you
The more I run

Well maybe I'm ashamed
Maybe I'm to blame
Maybe that's the reason why my lips might move but I still can't speak your name

Maybe it's the truth
The bottle stole my youth
Maybe all the days since then that came and went only help to show me through

Time ain't on my side
Time ain't on my side
The more I feel inside
The more I run from you

The more I run from you

We beg and kick and scream
But always, always
We come with hearts in hand
But always, always run back home again

We beg and kick and scream
But always, always
We come with hearts in hand
But always, always run back home again.

The more I run from you
The more I run from you
The more I run from you

Lyrics Submitted by Betsy Wright

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/