

Where You Are Tonight

Kip Moore

Sometimes I wake up in the middle of the night, thinking, drinking, and smoking
And hoping that it's me that's floating through your mind,
Floating through your mind
Then I get that feeling, trying to stop my hands from shaking,
Staring at the ceiling, and kneeling, and making deals with the man above
Yeah, with the man above Oh, I, I,
I'm wondering where you are tonight I wring the sheets out when I'm sweating,
Soaking wet, pacing, chasing the visions
And wishing that I could kiss,
Instead of missing you,
Yeah instead of missing you
Can't catch my breath, kinda feels like I'm suffocating, my mind's a wreck
At best, I think my heart is breaking down on me,
Breaking down on me Oh, I, I,
I'm wondering where you are tonight
I, I, tell me will we ever get it right
I, I, I'm wondering where you are tonight Can you feel me when I reach for you
Hear me when I say your name
See me walking through your door
Or are we just too far away
Too far away Tell me when I'm out of sight, am I out of mind,
Do you count the seconds and minutes, just wanna speed up time
Girl, are you missing me all the ways I'm missing you,
Could you tell me how the hell I'm suppose to make it through? Oh, I, I,
I'm wondering where you are tonight
I, I, tell me will we ever get it right
I, I, I'm wondering where you are tonight
(Wondering where you are tonight) Sometimes I wake up in the middle of the night, thinking,
Drinking and smoking and hoping
I wring the sheets out when I'm sweating,
Soaking wet, pacing, chasing the visions and wishing, yeah
Can't catch my breath, kinda feels like I'm suffocating, my mind's a wreck
At best, I think my heart is breaking down on me
Down on me
(Wondering where you are tonight)
