Rainbow

Aslyn

Once upon a day, you wandered my way
And lifted my nights with dreamer's parade
The puzzle fit perfect with storybook affect
But I needed something to make it complete
So I told my roommate, if I saw a rainbow
I would adore you then I opened the curtains praying for rain
And I plead every long night for a waterfall sky
'Cause then I'd know for sure my heart didn't lie
I was growing to love you, convinced that it was glue
But did not wanna jinx my affirmation clue
So I told my roommate, if I saw a rainbow
I would adore you and I opened the curtains praying for rain
Forty days and nights, nothing but clear skies
Most wouldn't complain but I needed a fight
I was crossing my cutdowns for a thungermous breakdown
In hopes for the makeup and a colorful sky
So I told my roommate if I saw a rainbow
I would adore you then you closed the curtains before it rained
Then the radio went wrong it sand me a sad song
With no falling starts to balance it out
And so that was the end to my last boyfriend
I learned where love went wrong was when I wrote this song
'Cause drip drop isn't in my hands
