Angry Situation

Save Ferris

You've always been runnin' from something or another
But your fear has never had such a name
You let your problems linger and always point the finger
'Cause' there's always someone else who's to blame
But now it's not so fun, it's got you on the run
Like the barrel of a gun's at your head
And now the moment's fadin', there's no need for hesitatin'
'Cause' if you do you just might end up dead
Did you think that this would make everything right?
Did you know the price you pay is your own life?
And as you're screaming out to me to make things right, tonight
How will you end your pain?
And now you need a fixin' 'cause you've got a bad addiction
And it's always screaming out for some more
You're acting like a junkie, on your back it is the monkey
As you sell your body just for the score
But now what will you do, when the choice is up to you
And how will you choose to end all your pain?
But for you the only answer
Is to give in to the cancer as you shove it right back into your vein
Did you think that this would make everything right?
Can't you see the price you pay is your own life?
And as you're screaming out to me to make things right, tonight
How will you end your pain?
Take a look at what you're doing
Can't you see the consequences that have lead to your ruin?
Though I've tried and I've tried my dear
The situation's ending is clear
And it's so sad to hear you say
That you fear your life is slipping away
You don't know what to do
But the answers are inside it all comes down to you
Did you think that this would make everything right?
Can't you see the price you pay is your own life?
And as you're screaming out to me to make things right, tonight
How will you end your pain? How will you end your pain? Your pain?

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/