

Doesn't Matter

Yellowcard

procrastination, the small conversation the tensions beginning to build up inside no one else's point of view has ever been to what you think is right that's why no body is your friend but they'll always become one someday as she follows me is now business that you run wondering what went wrong wondering just how long the road ahead will be joy has compromised dying on the i's crossing the t's one out of one it's a realization of people's reflection of what you believe anyone who now looks back be ready to die the fault will change so please don't get me wrong we share our common goals inside of me sees how you are so go on with the show wondering what went wrong wondering just how long the road ahead will be
joy has compromised
dying on the i's crossing the t's see where it gets us well see where we hang out but nothing can keep me from this way look at the sins and banged up poverty like which you remain in I won't buy what you're selling I feel my eye repairing always makes a chance to be seen

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>