I'm A Natural Man

Ol' Paint

Though I find that I am losing and I know I'll never win
I get trapped by indecision on an elementary whim
And I run from here to there without a thought of what's becoming of my life
And I'd rather get my breaks along the shore

And though everybodies counting I lost count so long ago
I can't be bothered with the patterns of life that they all know
And if I ran my life like a recipe I'd wind up never rising above my cake
And I think if I go on I might be great

I am a natural man across the universe I span
I know what everybody sees everything is up to me

And in a misty mossy garden by a shinging showing stream
There was a man with a flaming torch staring down at me
And he said young man go north or east wherever your mind decides to let you fly
And I came because I had to let you know

And if you see me running rapidly down the highway towards your nearest road
You may wonder where I'm going
