

Blood-Letting

Mothers

I think it's about time I was leaving you're stumbling over words I don't believe in but I'm finding new legs to walk with

I've been finding new knives to kiss withwhen you sleep your body turns a ghost white and I can't help but feeling like a fly on milk

I crawled back into myself alonedarling, I was old enoughI am writhing with certainty
I am dancing with the slow death trembling like a drop of mercury

I touched your wrist beneath the blanketno use now in trying to change our old ways when someone else's name is stuck between your shoulderblades

here are my hands reminding you of someone else's handsdarling, I was old enough god is stuck singing himself to sleep
I am not the only one
