Such A Terrible Trend

Halifax

I said I'm sorry for the rain, and where it all fell down
So I'll kick in the engine, get myself out of town
To all my disbelievers - I'll teach you to believe
We get addicted to our medicine, we create our own diseaseI found the cure, and it's inside of me
Won't you open your eyes to see?Revenge is sweet, when you're so discretely falling out of reach, yeah
Revenge is bitter, when allies turn rivals in times like these
Make it harder and harder to breatheCut throat and dripping, but I'm skipping out on what I need most
I've got an appetite for love suppressed by fear
We've got our fingers on the trigger and the barrel at the mirrorI found the cure, and it's inside of me
Won't you open your eyes to see?Revenge is sweet, when you're so discretely falling out of reach, yeah
Revenge is bitter, when allies turn rivals in times like these
Make it harder and harder to breatheI can't help that I'm angry and I love when I'm in pain
Shaking off the water from the unrelentless rain
This atmosphere is nowhere near what it used to be
The white flakes on the ceiling can't help but fall upon me (help but fall upon me)Break my bones, cause I'm beautiful when I'm not alone
Mend my bones, cause I'm ready, I'm ready to go homeRevenge is sweet, when you're so discretely falling out of reach, yeah
Revenge is bitter, when allies turn rivals in times like these
Make it harder and harder to breatheBreak my bones, cause I'm beautiful when I'm not alone
Mend my bones, cause I'm ready, I'm ready to go homeI said I'm sorry for the rain, and where it all fell down
