The Day I Let Go

Stone Sour

What a waste of life this is

Every altercation I permit

Is like a quiet sigh from a man

Resigned to a place that was never his And the hours are long

Even in a world where I belong

Every second stays, every minute

Counts against my sentenceI fall, I had to let you goWhat I tried to accomplish died

Every offer of faith I had to fight

And a dream unfolds, the moon is cold

Because the sun left early And the days go by

Even when my conscience just wont try

Every week decays, every mouth is rotten

I am forgottenI fall, I had to let you go

I fall, my mind is all I know

I fall, the table turns to dust

I fall, today, I let go of my trustWhat a waste of a time I am

Every ounce of life is just dead flesh

I cant forget but then again

You cant let me rememberWhen I try to speak

Every word I say comes out so bleak

I dont want this, I dont want you

But I don't want anyone

I dont want anyoneI fall, I had to let you go

I fall, my mind is all I know

I fall, the table turns to dust

I fall, today, I let go of my trustI let go of my trust

I let go of my trust

I let go of my trust

I let go of my trust

(Let go of my trust)

I let go of my trust

(Of my trust)I let go of my trust

(Of my trust)

I let go of my trust

(Of my trust)

I let go of my trust

(Of my trust)

I let go of my trustI let go of my trust

(Of my trust)

I let go of my trust I let go of my trust (Let go of my trust)
