Morning

Sonia Rao

Morning comes
I don't even know you
I see through it all
It means nothing to you

It's so hard to breathe
So I lay here waiting
Wait forever
Nothing's going to change I see that now

There are no words
You make no sound
They all got swallowed up
I flatten myself to the ground

My body waits
For something more
My skin yells silently
My heart is pounding on the door

I wanted love
I wanted anything but this
Can't even cry
Don't think that I believe it

I felt his gaze
I felt his hands
I saw my sister's face
I saw my father turn away

Soft now
I try to be somewhere else now
There is too much going on now
I escape him but he's always coming back to me

Morning comes
I don't even know you
I see through it all
It means nothing to you

It's so hard to breathe
So I lay here waiting
Wait forever
Nothing's going to change I see that now
