

Harm's Way

Stepdad

In one moment of hesitation, and miscalculation
I got lost, already exhausted, alone with the stars
 I'm just a romantic, to a crippling fault
All I see is magic, there's nothing to see at all
 My hands belong to a conquerer
 My heart belongs to a wanderer
 But my feet always lead me into harm's way
 My mind belongs to a scholar
 But my neck belongs in a collar
All I wish is someone to pull me out of harm's way
I tried to follow the constellations back to civilization
 Rivers to cross, Vultures to gnaw, nature is lawless
I can't find any more motivation for self preservation
 If I am condemned if my life is ending what good is pretending
 I'm just a romantic, to a crippling fault
All I see is magic, when there's nothing to see at all
 My hands belong to a conquerer
 My heart belongs to a wanderer
 But my feet always lead me into harm's way
 My mind belongs to a scholar
 But my neck belongs in a collar
All I wish is someone to pull me out of harm's way
I could never stay, never stay out of harm's way My hands belong to a conquerer
 My heart belongs to a wanderer
 But my feet always lead me into harm's way
 My mind belongs to a scholar
 But my neck belongs in a collar
All I wish is someone to pull me out of harm's way

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <https://damlyrics.com/>