

Habit

Quoit

For all these years you have been my lover
For all these years you have been my friend

The only solid part of my mind

My life line

Has turned to thin air

Like the drag that I just took and breathed out from my cigarette
And the smoke just disappeared way quicker than I can forget

And the ashes crumbling

And I can't see you at all

You can close a door and take everything we had

But just don't take my sanity with you

You can take it all and not even the bad

But just don't take my sanity with you

You could take it off of me and leave no net for the fall

NO

You just took it all

Now I can't have it

I've lost my habit

I'm craving you my lover

I'm missing my best friend
