Home

Heather Headley

When I think of home I think of a place where theres love overflowing I wish I were home, I wish I was back here with the things Ive been knowing.

And that makes the tall grass bend into leaning,

Suddenly the raindrops that fall have meaning.

Sprinkling the scene, makes it all clear. Maybe theres a chance for me to go back,

Now that I, I have some direction.

It sure would be nice for me to go back home

Where theres love and affection.

And maybe I can convince time to slow up

Giving me the time I need in my life to grow up.

Time, be my friend, help me start again. Suddenly the worlds gonna change its face But still I, Ill know where Im going.

And I have had my mind spread around in space

And yet I, Ive watched it growing. And I whisper, God, please, dont make it hard To know the things we should believe.

Tell me, should we try instead, should we run away

Or is it better just to let things meet. Living here, in this brand new world might be a fantasy But its thought me a lot, so its real, its real to me.

We must look inside our hearts to find A world full of love, like yours, like mine. Im home.
