

Golden

A Girl Called Eddy

Last night I dreamed
While I was walking that I died looking up
At fancy buildings and skyscrapers
Are real heart breakers
When your time has come and gone
It could've been all yours for a song
Of all the things I ever wanted
It was you and love and freedom
But I was a girl haunted, in the blue, undaunted
Just swimming for the shore, wondering what the hurt is for
But tonight I know why I'm here
I don't need to lose you to know
That it's already golden
Tonight I know in my heart
I don't need to die just to see
That it's already golden
It's already golden
So take the purple and take the black
And take all of the colors of heartache back
And throw them in the sea, and say you love me
Keep the silver, keep the gold
Stay and watch the world get old
