

Let God Be God

Phillips, Craig & Dean

You said, "Lights on"
And a blinding sea of stars began to shine
You said, "Birds sing"
And a million melodies filled up the sky

You said, "This world
Spinning through a crowded milky way"

Well, the sun comes up and the sun goes down
And God doesn't seem to need my help
The one who holds the sea in place
Is watching out for every step I take

I think I'll let God be God, giving up control
Think I'll relax, step back, it's time for letting go
If You kept the universe in sync a million years or so
Since the keeper of creation knows, I think I'll let God be God

You clapped Your hands
The thunder rose and lightning filled the sky
You bring new life
A tiny newborn baby starts to cry

But time rolls in and it rolls back out
Never has God needed me to help
The one who sees the sparrow fall
That's what I need before I even call

I think I'll let God be God, giving up control
Think I'll relax, step back, it's time for letting go
If You kept the universe in sync a million years or so
Since the keeper of creation knows, I think I'll let God be God

Nothing takes You by surprise
Never late, always on time
The one who holds the sea in place
Is watching out for every step I take

I think I'll let God be God, giving up control
Think I'll relax, step back, time for letting go

If You kept the universe in sync a million years or so
And if the keeper of creation knows, I think I'll let God be God

I think I'll let God be God

If You kept the universe in sync a million years or so
Since the keeper of creation knows, I think I'll let God be God

I think I'll let God be God
