To All My Homies

Mest

good and bad things come in life but usually it don't go my way and I wish the good things would stay and the good things fly away but I'm not asking why I have a knack for doing wrong but I try and I try maybe my future don't look so bright you gotta live your life from day to day that's the only way just listen and learn don't fear the things that you don't know and let the hard feelings go and if they respect me man fuck they're ok I try to make new friends from day to day that I can't stand to see it's the yuppity white people that fear me cause if you're a good person at heart your color means nothing to me I talk to so many black people from day to day and it seems like every time I see a white person don't fear the things that you don't know that's the only way they just turn away you gotta live your life from day to day just listen and learn and let the hard feelings go you gotta live your life from day to day don't fear the things that you don't know ya ya that's the only way just listen and learn and let the hard feelings go
