Chippie

John Zorn

I trip on my words when I hear her voice
The thoughts in my head keep running over
Again your redundant sympathy for me
Could never make me feel any betterI'm falling further away from you
I stumble, still waiting for your answerThis is the last time you'll hear my voice
Screaming the words that never made sense
From the tears in your eyes to the smile on my face
You finally got what's coming to youExcessively stressful is what we've become
A burden upon which neither of us needs
The past is the past and should be left behind
The future is now, let me change your mindI'm falling further away from you
I stumble, still waiting for your answerThis is the last time you'll hear my voice
Screaming the words that never made sense
From the tears in your eyes to the smile on my face
You finally got what's coming to you
(Coming to you)Find a way to carry on, don't think of me
'Cause I'll be gone and when the day comes to an end
You'll think of me and I'll think of you again
I'll never forget your melodic voiceThis is the last time you'll hear my voice
Screaming the words that never made sense
From the tears in your eyes to the smile on my face
You finally got what's coming to you
