

I've Seen Enough to Know

Pam Tillis

I know it was pretty strange timing and maybe the odds were bad
We were awkward as a couple of left-footed dancers
Baby we were pretty sad
You tried to tell me that it just wouldn't work
Your heart was too far gone
And it might have been easier to leave you alone I've seen enough to know, a heart worth savin'
Enough to know, a chance worth takin'
Even though you're tryin' not to let it show
There's a part of you that's dyin', dyin' to let go
And I've seen enough to know, oh, I've seen enough to know Now there's a light in your eyes and a warmth to your touch
That wasn't there yesterday
And there's a crack in the wall that you've built around your heart
And it's startin' to give way
It's taken time, it's taken patience waiting in the dark
But my intuition's been right on the money so far Even though you're tryin' not to let it show
There's a part of you that's dyin', dyin' to let go
I've seen enough to know, I've seen enough to know
Oh, you know it's startin' to show, I've seen enough to know
