

A Woman Loves a Man

Joe Cocker

Sometimes love can't explain
Each and every rule of the game
Still remains a mystery to me
By any other name Why she can't make up her mind
While he decides to stay
While one surrenders
And the other one's away
But it's too much to understand
Still a man loves a woman; and When a woman loves a man
A woman loves a man
She does what she can do
He does the best he can When a woman loves a man
A woman loves a man
She does what she can do
He does the best he can And I look into her eyes
When the world is out of hand
And I'm so happy When a woman loves a man
When a woman loves a man
A woman loves a man
A woman loves a man No moon tonight
No nothing to guide me
Still I will find her
Standing beside me No moon tonight
There's nothing to guide me
But still I will find her
Standing beside me There's darkness everywhere
Still I'll find her
Standing beside me
Standing beside me She's a woman of strength
He's a man of conviction
But sometimes the truth
Is stronger than fiction When a woman loves a man
A woman loves a man
She does what she can do
He does the best he can When a woman loves a man
When that woman loves a man
She does what she can do
He does the best he can No moon tonight
No nothing to guide me

Still I will find her
Standing beside meNo moon tonight
No nothing to guide me
Still I will find her
Standing beside meNo moon tonight
Nothing to guide me
Still I will find her
Standing beside meWhen a woman loves a man
A woman loves a man
She does what she can do
But I do all I can

Songwriters

Midnight, Charlie / Hartman, DanPublished by Lyrics Â© Sony/ATV Music Publishing LLC

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>