We Agree

Donald Lawrence

Answers never clear again this turning of the page
This turning look away, there I took a left turning
Before I came of age
But I agreed to let it out, I agreed to let it go
I agreed to turn around, I agreed to turn my face away
Danger is the most important fear you?ll ever know
The transporting of refugees, the silent night is cold
And all the time we looked around as we were never told
But we agreed to let it out, we agreed to let it go
We agreed to turn our backs, we agreed to turn our face away, away
Thousands to the million sisters, grandmothers and more
It?s not the feast we throw away, it?s the way we close the door
Their silence deafens every sound, we try just to ignore
To waste their future freedom, we?ll regret forever more
I believe in, I believe in, these are the days that we will talk about
I believe in, I believe in, one understanding what is real
If we are one then we are refugees
We are the prisoners of our own design
If we are one, seen through the eyes of child

We will perpetuate this song of love
If we are one, seen through the eyes of child
We will perpetuate this song, perpetuate this song of love
Now, we build the bridges that we walk upon together
At the last count many lonely souls, the sadness always kills
Each breaking point is waiting for the promise to fulfill
When we agree to turn the page, when we agree to help them free
When we agree to let it out, when we agree to let it shine
When we agree to let it run, when we agree to let it change our lives
I believe in, our lives, I believe in, these are the days we will talk about
When we are one, seen through the eyes of child
We will perpetuate this song of love
When we are one, seen through the eyes of child
We will perpetuate this song of love
Perpetuate this song of love, yeah, yeah
Perpetuate this song of love
Seeing through the eyes of child, seeing through the eyes of the child
Seeing through the eyes of child, seeing through the eyes of the child
